What Makes Naviance Different? Comprehensive, Expert Cancer Support for Your Workforce

Navigators in the Industry

Many types of navigation exist, and though no two types are alike, some naturally complement each other to offer the best support for the patient. While some navigators have broad focus — including care coordination, emotional support or benefits navigation — others are oncology specialists limited to a specific clinical or geographic location. Naviance Oncology Nurse Navigators are clinically trained in all facets of the cancer experience, leveraging decades of expertise to guide your employees and their loved ones to optimal care at every turn, no matter where they live or how their lives have been touched by cancer.

About Naviance

Naviance is a cancer support and navigation program for your entire workforce and their loved ones — from cancer prevention to diagnosis, treatment, survivorship and caregiving.

Naviance Nurse Navigators are specially trained to provide expert guidance using our unique navigation methodology throughout every aspect of the cancer journey.

At the start of each relationship, Nurse Navigators take time to understand the person behind the patient by asking five important questions:

- 1 What do you know about your cancer?
- 2 How much do you want to know about your cancer?
- 3 What are you most worried about right now?
- 4 What are you most looking forward to right now?
- 5 What are three things that bring you joy?

The Johns Hopkins approach to Nurse Navigation means your employees are given the utmost care and respect, navigated to high-quality treatment options consistent with their goals and wishes, and provided with personalized resources to support them at work and at home, from risk reduction, through treatment and beyond.

We work alongside oncology experts at the Johns Hopkins Sidney Kimmel Comprehensive Cancer Center, who offer additional oversight to ensure that our Nurse Navigators can connect individuals to the high-quality care they deserve, nationwide.
